

Leveraging Technology to Make Disciples

While the landscape of our culture is changing rapidly, the core mission of the church has not: go and make disciples.

So how can we use the technology available to do that? I believe there are three keys for our churches to effectively utilize technology and give us the opportunity for digital discipleship in a world that is more connected and relationally-driven than ever before.

Download a helpful guide from Church Community Builder's Steve Caton here.